Chapter 1 by River Mermaid

Jade Timing dove into the deep blue of the water. Her legs torpedoed her entire body swiftly through the water, and her arms pulled her body forward, cutting through the turquoise of the ocean; her second home. She maneuvered aimlessly in big loops, only interrupting her swimming to go up for air. On one of these occasions, she saw a strange form inside of the mouth of a cave in the distance.

"Is that an injured woman?", she thought.

Jade swam closer up to the cave in one breath. She gasped when she saw what had been the shape in the distance. There lay a pale skinned woman with light blue hair. But that wasn't the strangest aspect of this woman. Where her legs should be, there was a shimmering tail with the shining texture of a dolphin and the color of the indigo ocean at midnight. The creature was shallowly breathing, and her eyelids were closed.

Jade caught a shimmer of gold in the corner of her eye. She turned up the mermaid's down-facing wrist to find a message embroidered into her skin in gold thread.

The message read, "Property of King Neptune".

Jade also turned over the mermaid's head to find that her hair was matted with blood. The creature had clearly bashed her head.

Suddenly, the mermaid rustled away. She swam away from Jade and began to mumble something.

"My mission! What was my mission? I don't remember!"

She turned back to Jade and shrieked in horror. Jade did the same.

"You've kidnapped me!", the mermaid accused. She pointed at Jade.

"What, no!", Jade answered.

"Now you're trying to confuse me! Well, I, Indigo Sar, will not fall for it!"

The mermaid attempted to move away, but her landlocked state would not allow it.
